MEAD'S TREK

TOM GAUTHIER

Marine Corps Major Amos Mead, a lawyer by education and a Special Agent for the FBI by trade, is recruited as an agent in the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) in early 1943. His latest mission: Assess the level of cooperation among the factions conducting the war against the Empire of Japan in the Asian Theater of Operations. Known only to a few, additional orders direct Major Mead to seek out a powerful Asian leader and investigate the possibility of the Vice President of the United States being involved in secret negotiations with Vietnamese Communists for a postwar alliance.

En route to his assignment, the mission then takes on a new urgency— one of survival. Mead and his team are thrust onto a trek in an enemy infested jungle that will test the limits of their mental toughness and physical endurance.
